Notice to Conductors and Motormen: EVENTS OF INTEREST With the view of openinging travel upon the street cars of the city, and the opening the public as little as possible in the enforcement of the law FOR THE COMING WEEK

Important events for the week include an election for the congress of the Philippine Islands, the decision of Judge Landis, of Chicago, in the Rockefeller-Standard Oli case, the opening of the fourth trial of Caleb Powers on an indictment charging him with the murder of Governor Goebel, of Kentucky, and probably further legal proceedings in the test cases to determine the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of the North Carolina State railroad law.

There will be also a notable discussion of the subject of social unrest at Chaptenage this commerce law by using illegal railroad commerce law by using illegal railroad and the commerce law by using illegal railroad commerce law by using illegal railroad commerce law by using illegal railroad.

wealth, the church, and public utilities.

President Roosevelt's promise to the fillipines, made through Secretary Taft at Mantla August 11, 1805, that they should have a parliament of their own on condition that complete peace be maintained in the islands for two years, will be redeemed Tuesday, when the first general election for a Philippine congress is to be held.

The new Assembly, or Legislature, will consist of two houses to be known as the Philippine Commission and the Philippine Assembly. The latter body will have eighty-one members, each me representing a population of 90,000. The Assembly will make its own rules and cleat a speaker and recorder. The

The purpose of the strike, which was called by the international council in a number of cities simultaneously, was to put into effect the closed shop, and to secure the cight-hour day. The question of wages was not made prominent, nor was the cight-hour day made an issue by the employers, and the fight has been principally on the question of an one or closed shop. On ployed at the time of the strike, but were merely "extra men" in the various shops, who went out with the strikers and who were members of the union in good standing.

It was explained by the president that some other men, members of the union, who had no regular employment, but who were accustomed to take jobs in the shops in busy seasons, but who were not at work at the time of the strike, had been carried on the union puy-roll for some time, but had now been dropped, Mr. Hudson said he thought there were still thirty-one men who are entirely carried by the weekly payments and the international Union. He also explained that the apprentice boys in the shops, not full members of the union, since they had not served their time, had been dropped from the payroll, although they were carried for some time as regular strikers. The boys, he declared, seemed to be entirely willing to live on the union, and
